

Reliance on Other Experts

[Reference from Piedra Amarilla Properties /Development Report]

Historically, there have been sufficient surveys, evaluations, development, investigations, reports and investments made to qualify Piedra Amarilla properties well within inferred and indicated reserves. These values for known mineral reserves are substantiated by The Ralph M. Parsons Company, Chilean Government Agencies, INTEC-CHILE, Mineral Exploration Corporation of the Americas (M.E.C.A.), Minexco; and in assays, estimates and investigations conducted by C.S.I. Ag. Limited.

Geologists retained by C.S.I. explored over 100 square miles of potential mining prospects in the region over a 15-year period prior to the selection of Piedra Amarilla properties as the most desirable mining concession. Specialists retained by C.S.I. over the succeeding 10 years continued investigations that resulted in further credibility to the additional studies and reports prepared by INTEC-CHILE for MINEXCO, independent assays taken by top geologists in 1997 and the research arm of C.S.I. Ag. over the web.

The properties are comprised of nine (9) individual areas, seven (7) of which are contiguous sites and two (2) are non-contiguous, totaling 2500 hectares or 6,175 acres. (Note: There were additional properties assayed in some of the reports, and were calculated in as properties total volume of land, so the land's volume may vary but Ore Bodies value was calculated accurately.)

In 1988, The Ralph M. Parsons Company completed a study of Ore deposits at Piedra Amarilla properties with their findings represented in a Sulfur Pre-Feasibility Report. The data and the property were re-evaluated in 1989, 1990, 1991, 1994 and 1995 by a number of government groups and certified geologist and mineralogist. The data was compiled in reports, assays and technological surveys. In 1995 - 1996, this data was reviewed by two top U.S. specialist in mineralogy and mining. The reports from these well-respected consultants, as well as The Ralph M. Parsons study will be made available for review.

These opinions and affidavits require updating based upon the same information supplied by the Chilean agencies and the United States Bureau of Mining Standards. The Government of Chile has also completed its own assessment of nature, value, and extent of mineral content of the properties. Impressed by their findings, there has been additional information and assays taken and certified by independent marketing groups from Canada, which were seeking funding support from the Canadian Stock Exchange. Copies of these reports will be made available for review.
